Indianapolis, IN -- NOVEMBER 6, 2009 – The Skyline Club is excited to announce that Michael (Mickey) Maurer will be the premiere speaker at its November "At The Top" event. Mickey will share his story and insights about his rise to the top on Wednesday, November 18, 5:30 pm at the kick off "At The Top" event held at the Skyline Club.

Mickey has been an attorney and entrepreneur in cable television, film, radio, newspaper and banking. His business acumen is well-known, most notably as Chairman of the Indianapolis Business Journal and founder of the National Bank of Indianapolis.

Mickey pioneered the development of cable television throughout Indiana and Michigan; he was admitted to both the Indiana and New York bar associations; he established the second largest chain of racquetball clubs in the country; he served as President of the Indiana Economic Development Corp; he was named Indiana Secretary of Commerce; and he founded the "Mickey's Camp" charitable endeavor. His story is both inspiring and enlightening and is sure to encourage business professionals interested in reaching the top of their game.

"At The Top" is a 6-event business networking series presented by the Skyline Club of Indianapolis. It is designed to bring together prominent business leaders with other professionals desiring to reach the top of their game in a personal, relationship-building atmosphere.

"At The Top" provides Indianapolis area professionals with the opportunity to meet meritorious business principals who may otherwise be difficult to get in front of. In addition to Mickey Maurer, future events will include Robert Laiken, CEO of Brightpoint, Max Siegel of Dale Earnhardt Inc. fame, Jim Morris who engineered the recent branding-building efforts of the Indiana Pacers and other notable figures.

"The thing I like most about At The Top", says Skyline Club General Manager Jeff Markowicz, "is the personal nature of the events. Sure, we'll have champagne and hour' devours, but more importantly, we'll have some really great people here. Attendees will actually have conversations with these distinguished business leaders. They'll get to meet Mickey Maurer and Bobby Laiken and members of the Skyline Club's Board of Governors."

Markowicz goes on to say, "Building relationships is crucial to business today. In this tough economic environment, we want to do all we can to support business growth and the development of Indiana's economy in general."

"At The Top" is open to the business public with advanced reservations. Reservations can be made at the "At The Top" website at <http://www.AtTheTopNetworking.com> or by calling the Skyline Club at 317-263-5000.
